

A 20x20 grid of squares, each either red or light gray. The pattern is complex and non-repeating, with red squares forming a dense, interconnected structure against a background of light gray squares. The red squares are distributed across the grid in a way that suggests a random or pseudo-random process, with no obvious symmetry or regularity.